

ORDINARY PEOPLE EXTRAORDINARY ACHIEVEMENTS

TAKE AN INSPIRATIONAL JOURNEY TO THE TOP OF THE AFRICAN CONTINENT.

Looking for a way to motivate your team; to inspire them to achieve something extraordinary?

Daniel Dorr, author of Kissing Kilimanjaro; Leaving it All on Top of Africa, takes attendees on an entertaining and inspirational journey to the top of the African continent.

Dorr is an ordinary guy who followed his dream to climb Mt. Kilimanjaro. Now he shares his life-changing journey and the lessons that have made him a better person, professional and teammate.

Climbing Kilimanjaro is no different from any other major challenge we want to overcome in our lives. Whether we want to launch a new product, lose weight or mend a broken relationship we're all climbing a mountain of sorts. These experiences require us to be stronger than we think we are, endure more than we think we can, and become more than we dreamed possible.

Take an hour to discover how you and your team can successfully climb your own mountain.

Lessons in the presentation

Find your purpose:

Climbing a mountain requires a lot of motivation. We talk about how you can connect with your purpose.

Overcome failure:

If you're going to take a risk, then you're going to encounter failure. We discuss how we can learn and grow from failure.

Mitigate your limitations:

If we want to do something extraordinary, we have to confront our limitations and identify ways to mitigate them.

Find your mantra:

In the darkest of times we need to find our "mantra," a deeply motivating thought that can power us through the toughest times.

Make it extraordinary:

We close by talking about how even the most ordinary experiences have the potential to change our lives and become extraordinary.

Kissing Kilimanjaro: Leaving it All on Top of Africa is the story of an ordinary guy trying to do something extraordinary and all the rewards—both large and small—of reaching for personal fulfillment through adventure travel, physical challenge, and being willing to leave it all on the mountain.
